Portrait Photography

The majority of his career had been spent working as an actor in the theater in NYC where he performed in Broadway shows, as well as having performed internationally in London and other European cities. Ten years ago, the lure of a slower paced, better quality of life brought him home to his roots here in Minnesota.

“Photography is so much more than capturing an image to me. It is about connecting with the person on the other side of the lens and making them feel comfortable enough to reveal their true selves. I try not to pigeonhole myself into a “style” but rather shoot what’s in front of me and let the images tell the story of what happened that day. I am relentless, and my energy is endless. I work hard, and I am passionate about my work.”
